

Where Was I?

Project Name:

If you want to get a project back on track the only thing to do is figure out where you left off, identify why you were doing the project in the first place, and bring it back into the fold by finding its existing parts and creating a plan.

1. Locate all finished pieces and list;
2. Locate the pattern;
3. Gather up needles, notions, and tools; and
4. Review the pattern and completed work to see what is next.

What Next?

I think you should write out what remains, and be sure you figure out why you got stuck or put it aside. This may be the key to figuring out how to make this a successful, finished project. Now is the perfect time to ask for help if you need it, or seek clarification, or buy the size needles you need. Whatever got you off course needs to be addressed, to make this project positive again.

Remember I've got planning worksheets you can download if you need some help sorting out the steps.

If the project feels particularly onerous write what you want to work on next so you have something to look forward to!
